Some men are no account; that's all there is to it.

One prize-fighter seldom strikes another favorably.

It is one thing to count the cost, and quite another to pay it.

There's a pair of wings waiting for every man who really loves his enemies.

There is nothing original about Wall street, which is noted for its quotations.

Nothing makes us quite so mad, when we are so busy, as the Jolly Joker.

Pay people for what they have done, and not for what you expect them to do.

Some men seem to think the milk of human kindness flows only from bottles.

There is no man more dangerous than one who makes love with a fatherly air.

You can always make a woman mad by giving her children kittens to take home.

After the old maid finally becomes a Mrs. she feels that she never will be missed.

It's a pity that the fellow who is always shooting off his mouth never blows out his brain.

The man who makes the best of everything should have no trouble in disposing of his wares.

Abuse a man to his face and he will forget it, but he never forgets abuse behind his back.

We think the funniest thing in the world is that which a girl exhibits in her arm, and calls muscles.

Cultivate patience; as you get older you will find that it is the only talent you are expected to have.

We point with pride to the fact that Atchison men wear their hair short, and the women wear it long.

A widow just in mourning has a year to study the colors that will match her better than the old ones.

When a man orders spring lamb in a cheap restaurant he begins to realize how tough it is to die young.

We regret that there is no well-established superstition about the bad luck in wearing anything that is not paid for.

When we see a boy reading a novel in the middle of the day, and smoking a cigarette, somehow we don't like him.

It often happens when parents think they have married a daughter off, they have only taken a son-in-law on.

Gossip is unfair; it is more persistent about a man under suspicion than it is about a man well-known to be tough.

What Thin Folks Need

Is a greater power of digesting and assimilating food. For them Dr. King's New Life Pills work wonders. They tone and regulate the digestive organs, gently expel all poisons from the system, enrich the blood, improve appetite, make healthy flesh. Only 25c at Gaston's.

Spring Ailment.

There is an aching and tired feeling; the liver, bowels and kidneys become sluggish and inactive, the digestion impaired, with little or no appetite, no ambition for anything, and a feeling that the whole body and mind needs toning up. The trouble is, that during winter, there has been an accumulation of waste matter in the system. Herbine will remove it, secure to the secretions a tight exit, and by its tonic effect fully restore the wasted tissues and give strength in place of weakness. 50c at H. M. Sigloch's.

The Continental Limited on the Wabash railroad has made a new record from Tilton to Granite City, making 180 miles in 180 minutes. Cures When Doctors Fail.

Mrs. Frank Chiasson, Patterson, La., writes June 8, 1901: "I had malaria fever in very bad form, was under treatment by doctors, but as soon as I stopped taking their medicine the fever would return. I used a sample Herbine, found it helped me. Then bought two bottles, which completely cured me. I feel grateful to you for furnishing such a splendid medicine, and can honestly recommend it to those suffering from malaria, as it will surely cure them." Herbine, 50c a bottle at H. M. Sigloch's.

Sciatic Rheumatism Cured After Fourteen Years of Suffering.

"I have been suffering with sciatic rheumatism for fourteen years," says Josh Edgar of Germantown, Cal. "I was able to be around but constantly suffered. I tried everything I could hear of and at last was told to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I did and was immediately relieved and in a short time cured, and I am happy to say it has not since returned." It is for sale by Richardson Drug Co.

What He Might Have Said.

Winston Churchill tells an excellent story of a chaplain who quarreled with the captain of a ship on the way to South Africa because the captain refused to let him hold a service in a saloon.

The captain regarded himself as the priest of his own ship. Mr. Churchill found the chaplain tramping the deck in anger.

"And what did you say to him?" asked Mr. Churchill, sympathetically, when he had heard the story.

"Oh, I said nothing at all," answered the chaplain, with a splendid show of self-command, "but I may tell you that any other clergyman in the Church of England would have told him to go!" —Manchester Guardian.

How He Succeeded.

"If I hadn't acted upon the advice of a friend I am afraid that I should not have been married today, at least to my present wife," laughed the genial traveler. "When I courted the lady she was of a very romantic disposition, the result of reading a class of novels that pass for literature among some people. I think at that time she had an idea that some day a prince with rodding plumes would come riding out of the East and carry her away for his bride. At any rate, whenever I proposed, which was about as often as I met her, I got beautifully turned down. I was getting discouraged when an old friend of mine, who understood the situation, said to me:

"My boy, Jennie is a good girl, but her head is in the clouds the greater part of the time. Now, what you want to do is to catch her when she is down on the earth with the rest of us. Let me give you a pointer. Every Monday morning she is obliged to take care of the large family baking, and right there is your opportunity to find her with her feet firmly planted upon the earth. Call around there when she is over the top of the oven and state your case."

"I took the hint and called early one Monday morning. I found her in a calico dress, with her hair done up in curl papers, and her arms busily manipulating a rolling pin, and there, seated on a kitchen chair, without one romantic feature about it, she promised to be mine. She told me afterward that at the time she didn't know which way was east, letting alone conjuring up a prince."—Detroit Free Press.

James Plant, a venerable son of the Emerald Isle, who was a well known Union soldier and who afterwards saw twenty years' service as a sergeant major in the regular army, serving in all the important Indian campaigns, and in Alaska, died recently at an advanced age. He was for many years one of the watchmen at the interior department building, at Washington, and was quite a favorite, owing to his ready Irish wit.

One of the stories related of "Jim" Plant is as follows: There are two clerks in the building who are great friends, and both are lame, having been wounded in the lower limbs during the civil war. Both were close friends of Plant. One of them is lame in the right leg and the other in the left leg, and they walk with "waddles" in opposite directions. The two men are almost inseparable and frequently meet at lunch hour. One day the man who limps to the left side approached Plant and asked him:

"Jim, did you see Mr. So-and-so passing out this way?"

"No," was the response of Plant, "but I saw him passing out this way," and the old Irish waddled down the hall as if he was lame in the right leg like Mr. So-and-so."

Several other good stories illustrating Plant's wit are told in the department.
